

Accessibility Statement

This website is run by the Creative Computing Institute. This accessibility statement applies to this website only. Other websites and browser based systems on the arts.ac.uk domain have their own accessibility statements.

This website uses HTML 5 (HyperText Mark-up Language) and CSS (Cascading Style Sheets) to render content. We have also used other technologies including JavaScript on certain areas of the website.

We commit to ensuring this website is as accessible as possible and we want as many people as possible to be able to use it. This means that you should be able to:

- Access the website regardless of the device and browser you are using
- Zoom in up to 300% without the text spilling off the screen
- Navigate most of the website using just a keyboard
- Navigate most of the website using speech recognition software
- Listen to most of the website using a screen reader (including the most recent versions of JAWS, NVDA and VoiceOver)

We have also tried to make the website text as easy to understand as possible although we recognise we have more work to do on this.

AbilityNet has advice on making your device easier to use if you have a disability.

How accessible this website is

We know that some parts of the website are not fully accessible:

- Our PDF documents are not fully accessible to screen reader software, however they are provided as a secondary option for users to print out. Their contents is identical to that in the web page from which they are linked.
- Some external video content may be missing captions and sub-titles
- Animations on the site play automatically and loop and they do not have controls to pause or stop them altogether
- Some interactive code examples are not fully accessible to screen reader software or using just a keyboard
